

"you act white"

"but, you're not really Black"

"you don't really count"

"you're not the same,
you wear nice
clothes and
have nice things"

"you're an Oreo"

"I wish I was
tan like you"

"well of course
you're fast"

"before I met you, I didn't know Black people could be pretty"

"you talk like
a white girl"

Examples of micro aggressions: "You speak too proper to be black", "Is that your REAL dad?", "How many kids do you have?", "I wish I was tan like you"; the list is long. I've heard every one of them all of my life. No, it's not abnormal for a black person to speak properly, no, it's not abnormal grow up in a loving 2 parent home, no, it's not abnormal for both parents to be highly educated and successful. Get a grip my Caucasian friends. We Blacks actually have our sh%# together more than you think we do because we stand on the shoulders of our ancestors who fought for and died for us to have these luxuries you deem as "normalcies".
